

Dr. Govind Singh

Dr. Govind Singh is an Environmentalist, Academician and Consultant based in Delhi and is the Co-Founder & Director of Delhi Greens NGO. Dr. Govind Singh holds a Master's and Ph.D. in Environmental Studies from the University of Delhi. With over six years' experience of teaching in the University of Delhi and over twelve years' experience of working in the Environmental Sector, Dr. Govind Singh continues to advocate for sustainable development and involve, engage and inspire the youth to work for environmental protection and biodiversity conservation.

In 2007, Dr. Govind Singh Co-Founded the Delhi Greens organisation which has been playing an instrumental role in generating environmental awareness and channelizing the energy of the youth for ensuring urban sustainability. His own focus and work profile is motivated towards finding sustainable solutions to environmental problems by balancing contemporary environmental principles with spiritual ecology and traditional knowledge. Dr. Govind Singh has been a member and coordinator of several environmental programmes, projects, proceedings, and campaigns at national and international platforms. He has also been the brain behind the award winning Delhi Greens Blog and Urban Ecotourism projects, both of which are aimed at ensuring environmental harmony and sustainable development. The Delhi Greens Blog was recently featured by the United Nations as a "Lighthouse", "Momentum for Change" activity in the fight against climate change.

Dr. Govind Singh has been an active environmental youth leader since his College days. He takes special interest in being an Environmental Communicator and continues to mentor and orient young minds for becoming passionate towards environmental issues through his academic and organisational involvements.
